BREMBO RECEIVES FIAT SUSTAINABILITY SUPPLIER OF THE YEAR AWARD

On the occasion of the first edition of the Fiat-Chrysler Sustainability Supplier of the Year Award Brembo was recognised as 2012 sustainable supplier of the year.

In 2009 the car company from Turin launched specific certification procedures for its supply chain in EMEA area, further expanding and consolidating sustainability efforts. Thanks to the integration of Fiat and Chrysler, the Group can count on the strong points and best practices of the various branches around the world, promoting progressively more sustainable mobility and protection of the environment and natural resources through low environmental impact production processes.

Brembo earned this important recognition following an audit conducted by a third party agency named by Fiat-Chrysler. They demonstrated significant commitment in terms of sustainability issues, having adopted a Code of Ethics for some time which is also followed by their suppliers, and a specific Code on Basic Working Conditions which extends to all the companies in the Group, as well as creating a structure focused on defining company strategies relative to sustainability issues and the subsequent translation into actions and projects.

Cristina Bombassei, Brembo Administrative Director and CSR Officer, received the award from Sergio Marchionne, Fiat-Chrysler CEO and Alfredo Altavilla, Fiat-Chrysler Chief Operating Officer Europe, Africa and Middle East, during an official ceremony organised at the Lingotto Turin Congress Centre.
